SCHEDULE “B” TO BY-LAW NO. 2024-0067

REASONS FOR DESIGNATION

Description of Property

The subject property is located along the south side of Queen Street in the community of Georgetown, within the neighbourhood historically associated with the Grand Trunk Railway line. The existing house at 22 Queen Street is set back from the right of way on a rise above Queen Street with a retaining wall and is accessed from Queen Street.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value or Interest

The property at 22 Queen Street (UENI), together with its twin ILLAHEE, is a unique expression of the Queen Anne Revival style in a stone residential building in the community of Georgetown. UENI features rusticated stone exteriors and detailing, including sills, lintels, and the stone panels naming each property on the front elevations; asymmetrical facades; multi-pitched roofs with irregular rooflines; front-facing gables and the appearance of towers; projecting two-storey bays; and a variety of window shapes and sizes. Together with its twin ILLAHEE, this residence represents a high degree of craftsmanship and merit in its detailing, carved stone panels with names, and decorative wooden projecting bays on the northeast elevation.

UENI has historical and associative value due to its association with Edward McCannah, Station Agent for the Grand Trunk Railway. McCannah constructed several houses along Queen Street, including the residences at 26 Queen Street, 20 Queen Street, and his personal residence Grey Vernon at 5 Albert Street. UENI is also associated with the residential development around the Grand Trunk Railway line at the end of the nineteenth century and early twentieth century.

UENI has contextual value as one of several historic properties along Queen Street in Georgetown. The house is physically and historically linked to several of the existing residences along the street, many of which were constructed by Edward McCannah. UENI, together with its twin next door ILLAHEE, is significant in defining and maintaining the character of the area.
