334 St. James Street (north side between Hellmuth and Waterloo)

Architectural Reasons

Built in 1909 the house is one of three once identical houses on St. James Street. It was built for John O'Dell, a salesman for Robinson and Little Co. It is a vernacular Queen Anne structure, the prominent style in the neighbourhood. The verandah is original to the house with its simple doric columns, entablature with dentils and spindle balustrade. The front and side bay windows are noteworthy. The building remains unaltered. This is particularly true of the interior where the front entry hall and living room retain a decorative fretwork screen, columns and a fireplace.

Contextual Reasons

Identified as part of a potential Hellmuth - St. James Heritage Conservation District.
