SCHEDULE "A"

REASONS FOR DESIGNATION STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Description

The property at 281 Cherry Street is worthy of designation under Part IV, Section 29 of the Ontario Heritage Act for its cultural heritage value, and meets the criteria for municipal designation prescribed by the Province of Ontario under the categories of design and contextual values. Located on the east side of Cherry Street, north of Commissioners Street, the Toronto Hydro Substation (1928) is a two-storey industrial building. The site was listed on the City of Toronto Inventory of Heritage Properties in 2003.

Statement of Cultural Heritage Value

The Toronto Hydro Substation at 281 Cherry Street is a modest example of Edwardian Classical styling with the typical red brick cladding, symmetry and classical detailing that elevates the appearance of the utilitarian building and complements in scale and appearance the former Dominion Bank (1920) at 275 Cherry Street.

Contextually, the Toronto Hydro Substation is historically, visually and physically related to its surroundings on the east side of Cherry Street between Commissioners and Villiers Streets where it stands as part of a group of low-rise commercial and industrial buildings that reflect the initial development of this section of the Toronto waterfront as the Port Industrial District.

Heritage Attributes

The heritage attributes of the property at 281 Cherry Street are:

- The two-storey substation
- The scale, form and massing on a rectangular plan
- The materials, with red brick cladding, a stone base, and brick and stone detailing
- The flat roof that is sloped and marked by a parapet at the west end
- The narrow rectangular plan where the principal (west) façade is organized into three bays
- On the west façade, the flat-headed openings with a central entrance with brick piers and a stone entablature, the symmetrical fenestration with brick voussoirs and stone sills, the brick quoins, and the stone name band reading "Toronto Hydro-Electric System"
- The side elevations (north and south) that are visible from Cherry Street, with flat-headed openings on the south wall
- The placement and setback of the structure on the east side of Cherry Street
