SCHEDULE 'A'

125 MAIN STREET WEST, GRIMSBY

One hundred and twenty-five Main Street West, historically referred to as the Nelles-Fitch house, was built by Robert Nelles in 1791. Robert Nelles holds a place of distinction in the annals of Grimsby history. During the War of 1812, Robert rose to the position of Regiment Commander of the Fourth Lincoln Regiment. In addition to his military accomplishments, Robert was also appointed to the legislative assembly of Upper Canada. The house remained in the Nelles family until 1841. In 1852, the house was purchased by Doctor William Fitch in whose family it remained until 1938.

The Nelles-Fitch house is an excellent example of the early Georgian architectural style which later became more prominent throughout Upper Canada. This style is typified by a symmetrical facade and highlighted with an ornate entrance that featured a portico with side and fan lights. In addition to these, the house also contains several unusual architectural features including unusual brick-capped, hooded chimneys.

These historical and architectural features provide a significant contribution to the character of the Town of Grimsby.
