This address has been home to a succession of upper middle class residents over the years. Residents have included James McKillop, who was County Crown Attorney and barrister in the 1910's and George Bannantine who was a production manager with Imperial Oil.

Architectural Reasons

Built in 1896, this two and a half storey, white brick, Queen Anne house has elaborate detailing and complex massing. Some of the most interesting features include an elaborate, tall corbelled chimney on the east facade. The front gable has elaborate shingling, bargeboards and bracket work. The exterior walls are enlivened with a variety of brick treatments including bichromatic voussoirs, panels and string courses. There is a keyhole window on the west facade. The foundation is limestone.
